

WOULD ABOLISH THE U. S. SENATE

SOCIAL DEMOCRAT MEMBER OF THE LEGISLATURE HAS STARTLING VIEWS.

BOTH HOUSES ADJOURN

Senate Meets in Remodeled Supreme Court Chambers—Other Legislative News.

Madison, Jan. 20.—Senator Gabriel Zophy, social democrat of Milwaukee, today introduced a joint resolution before the senate providing that a request be made to the United States senate to authorize a convention to plan an amendment to the federal constitution abolishing the United States senate.

The senator also introduced a similar bill providing for the nationalization of trusts and monopolies and for the collective ownership of these organizations by the people.

The senate met today in the remodeled supreme court rooms, which, starting Tuesday, will be the permanent quarters of that body.

The senate and assembly adjourned at noon, following the morning session, until Tuesday at 10 a. m., when the balloting will be taken up in the re-election of United States Senator La Follette.

Assemblyman Whelan of Grand Rapids today introduced a bill making it a misdemeanor and punishable by fine for members of fraternal organizations to divulge the secrets of such organizations.

Senator Gaylord of Milwaukee introduced a bill making it unlawful for any person holding a legislative office to be retained by any common carrier or public utility corporation.

A resolution providing for a system of balloting by the aid of colored electric lights and push buttons on the desk of senators and assemblymen was introduced by Assemblyman Mahon in the assembly today.

The new system is now used in many South American legislatures, according to Prof. Paul Reinsch of the University of Wisconsin, who outlined the plan and has made a study of the new mode of voting. Two push buttons are attached to every legislator's desk. Red and blue lights indicate yes or no on a large sign board near the speaker's desk. This system will abolish the exhaustive roll call and produce almost an instantaneous vote, according to Prof. Reinsch.

MAY INVESTIGATE COAL EXPLOSIONS

Methods Used in Storing Fuel On Battleships May Be Looked Into To Do Away With Dangers.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, Jan. 20.—Investigation of the manner of storing coal on United States battleships is expected in the near future by officers of the navy.

The immediate cause for such an inquiry is found in the fact that within two weeks, explosions recently occurred in the coal bunkers of two battleships, causing the death of a man in each instance. They were on the North Dakota and on the Michigan. Coal passer Evans, of the North Dakota died after lingering nearly two weeks from the time of his being burned. Benjamin McCleary, coal passer on the Michigan, died within two days after the accident. Both men were injured while the fleet was in the English Channel. Though such explosions are not unknown in the navy, officers are freshly alarmed at what seems to be an increase in their frequency.

According to the report of the Board of Inquiry on the North Dakota, coal dust was responsible for the explosion on that battleship. Evans declared that he had crawled into the bunker to take a nap. Needing a light, he scratched a match, and the explosion followed, severely burning him. The board reported that there was no trace of gas in the bunker. An explosion report on the Michigan, however, has yet been received, but the circumstances, so far as known, were similar.

Lack of ventilation, naval officers say, is the dangerous factor in battleship coal bunkers. On most of the ships, if the trunks are opened and kept open to admit air, water also gets open. It is well known that water in small quantities, with large amounts of soft coal, will induce spontaneous combustion. The difficulty of the problem is increased by the fact that there is little choice in placing the bunkers, all must open into the fore room.

Many officers are convinced that these recent explosions offer a strong argument for the adoption of oil burners. The danger from coal, they say, is too great to be longer tolerated.

SLIDES CAUSE NO SETBACK TO WORK

Falling Of Earth Along Panama Canal Not Worrying Engineers In Charge Of Excavation.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Washington, Jan. 20.—Continued newspaper reports of slides of hundreds of thousands of cubic yards of earth along the banks of the Panama Canal are not causing a single wrinkle in the brows of the members of the Isthmian Canal Commission in this city.

When queried as to the slides, officers of the commission smile and assert that not only are they expected, but that their effect has been discounted. Still more slides are yet to come, they say, and the engineers have even pointed out the locations where they may be expected.

During December, near Las Canoas, the east bank slipped twice, two slides having occurred at this point previously. An area of nearly ten acres will be underlain in the slides, it is expected, when the movement of the earth at this point has entirely ceased. Already about 500,000 cubic yards of dirt has fallen into the ditch, and at least 150,000 more is expected.

The slides are mainly due to an upper layer of clay. This slips upon the surface of the hard rock beneath as the digging proceeds. It will continue, say the engineers, until the proper pitch of the slides has been reached. Meanwhile, steam shovels and railroad facilities are being provided at the affected points, for the removal of the earth deposits.

MAY CALL A WORLD STRIKE OF SEAMEN

London Newspaper Says Tie-up of International Shipping Interests Is Threatened.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

London, Jan. 20.—"Over the head of the shipping trade of the United Kingdom, and indeed, of international shipping interests," says the London Globe, "hangs the Democratic sword of a world strike."

"The aim is to paralyze the commerce of the world by a general international strike, as agreed upon at the Copenhagen Congress of the International Transportation Workers' Association, held in August. The resolution of the men's leaders to conduct a general strike because of the refusal of the owners to discuss the proposals of the seamen's unions in Europe for the establishment of a conciliation board, it was added that the time for the strike should be kept secret."

"Since the Congress all the labor organizations connected with the shipping interest have been discussing the methods to be adopted. Quite recently an ominous circular has been issued by the executive committee of the Dock, Wharf, Riverside and General Workers' Union of Great Britain. The officials refuse to divulge the nature of the document, which is believed to bear directly upon the date and time of the projected strike."

"Havelock Wilson, the leader of the Seamen's and Firemen's Union, has been very active in the business for some months. The men's grievances have been stated by Mr. Wilson to be connected with their present conditions of employment. They object to the practice of paying off men at any port to suit the convenience of ship-owners, asserting that the men should be paid off at the port at which they signed on. The practice, it is asserted, leaves the men stranded in a foreign port without means to get home and leaves them no means of redress against their employers."

"The men admit that the shipping act effected a great improvement in the state of diet, but complain that there are no provisions for enforcing its observance and that more depends upon the good will of the ship's officers than upon the act itself. They further state that complaints lead to the victimization of members of the Seamen's and Firemen's Union, who are dismissed, and their places taken by scabbers."

"The sanitary accommodations of the forecabin, too, are condemned."

STATEMENT OF COST OF INVESTIGATIONS

Five Important Special Legislative Investigations Between Sessions of 1909 and 1911 Cost $32,570.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 20.—Just $32,570.62 was the cost of five of the special legislative investigations conducted between the sessions of the 1909 and 1911 legislatures and which resulted in bills of momentous state importance. The expenses of the various committees varied with the importance of the subjects, that on industrial insurance costing the most, with the investigation into the subjects of water powers and forestry a close second. The figures which have just been tabulated by the secretary of state, follow:

Industrial insurance	$12,451.48
Highways	2,352.11
Banking	3,017.92
Forestry and water powers	1,543.44
Education	2,217.00

Total

Those expenses cover only the expenditures for traveling and the like, clerical help, stationery and postage, but the members of the committees received no extra compensation.

The expenses of the Stephenson investigation are not yet known, that of the senate investigation which is now the subject of a resolution designed eventually to unseat the Marinette senator not having been computed.

PATRONAGE ISSUE IS CAUSE FOR WAR

President Taft and Senator La Follette At St. Paul Discuss Points Regarding Wisconsin Appointments.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—Unqualified war impends between President Taft and Senator La Follette on a patronage issue. In sending the names of two Wisconsin appointees to the senate yesterday, President Taft withheld from La Follette the courtesy usually extended to senators. One of the men named may fall for confirmation.

For United States district attorney for the eastern division of Wisconsin, the president, without consulting La Follette, decided upon Guy D. Goff, the Milwaukee attorney. This senator had recommended W. J. Elroy for the place.

In choosing a United States marshal, Taft did not consult La Follette and nominated Henry A. Well for reappointment. As Well was appointed four years ago on the recommendation of La Follette, his reappointment is satisfactory to the senator.

The entry list this year includes clubs from every section of the continent, and practically every championship team, both five and doubles, of the last several big bowling tournaments. Also several individual champions of recent years will roll with teams, besides trying for individual honors again.

DISCUSSED IMPORT OF NEW RESOLUTION

Various Differences Of Opinion Are Expressed By Republican Leaders Regarding Ellington Resolution.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 20.—Since the publication last night of supposed true import of the Ellington resolution to provide for the submission of all legislation not regularly passed to a vote of the people, the situation was discussed privately last night by a number of the republican leaders, and some interesting differences of opinion were brought out. Several declared that the resolution would not really bind itself to submit to the people any tentative propositions and, all bills supported by proper petitions and not otherwise passed in the regular way. Others thought that it might involve members in difficulties if certain kinds of bills—such as one providing for county option, for instance—should come up in such a manner.

"The resolution is, strictly, much loosely drawn," said one republican senator. "And I would not submit myself by voting for it. At the same time, I am perfectly willing to vote to submit any proposition to the people, even though I am personally opposed to it and might otherwise vote against it."

Inasmuch as the senator referred to probably voices the views of most of his colleagues, the movement to secure the referendum without amending the constitution is likely to fail. The resolution has been referred to the committee on constitutional amendment—although it proposes no such amendment, and it is not likely to come to life for many moons.

RESOLUTIONS CAUSE DELAY IN BUSINESS

Reading Of Measures Favored By Socialists Causes Obstacle To Regular Legislative Work.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 20.—One of the obstacles in the way to expedite the business of the legislature has been turning up every morning since the session began, in the desultory reading of a mass of resolutions, most of which are favored by socialist members. Practically all of those measures voice principles peculiar to the socialist creed, and there is little likelihood of any of them going any further than the committee to which they are referred.

Many of the legislators of other parties believe that some attempt should be made to curtail the reading of these documents by the chief clerk by means of a rule which would make it necessary to read them, by title only. It is likely, however, that considerable opposition, probably would arise to such a rule, as it would cut off from the radical members their only chance to be heard on their offerings, and it is not desired by the leaders to antagonize this powerful minority. It is said that such of the social democratic members expects to offer from ten to a score of bills and resolutions, so that the total from that side of the assembly alone may reach 200 before the introduction of new bills is cut off.

INSIDE HISTORY

Some Self-Explanatory Letters.

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan'y 7, '11.
Dr. E. H. Pratt,
Suite 1202, 100 State St.,
Chicago, Ill.

My Dear Doctor:

"Owing to some disagreement with—magazine several years ago they have become quite vituperative, and of late have publicly charged me with falsehoods in my statements that we have genuine testimonial letters."

"It has been our rule to refrain from publishing the names either of laymen or physicians who have written to us in a complimentary way and we have declined to accede to the demand of attorneys that we turn these letters over to them."

"I am asking a few men whom I deem to be friends to permit me to reproduce some of their letters over their signatures in order to refute the falsehoods."

"We have hundreds of letters from physicians, but I esteem the one that you wrote to me in 1906 among the very best particularly in view of the fact that it recognizes the work I have been trying to do through the little book, 'The Road to Wellville.'"

"I do not sell or attempt to sell the higher thought which is more important than the kind of food, but I have taken considerable pains to extend to humanity such facts as may have come to me on this subject."

"In order that your mind may be refreshed I am herewith enclosing a copy of your good letter, also a copy of the little book, and if you will give me the privilege of printing this over your signature I will accompany the printing with an explanation as to why you permitted its use in publication in order to refute falsehoods and under that method of treatment I feel, so far as I know, there would be no breach of the code of ethics."

"I trust this winter weather is finding you well, contented and enjoying the fruits that are yours by right."

With all best wishes, I am,
Yours very truly
C. W. POST.

Chicago, Aug. 31, 1906,
Mr. C. W. Post,
Battle Creek, Mich.

My dear Sir:
I write to express my personal appreciation of one of your business methods, that of accompanying each package of your Grape-Nuts production with that little booklet 'The Road to Wellville.' A more appropriate, clear headed and effective presentation of health-giving auto-suggestions could scarcely be penned."

"Grape-Nuts is a good food in itself, but the food contained in this little article is still better stuff. I commend the practice because I know that the good and strenuousness, the consequent craft and other types of thievery and malicious mischief generally can never be cured by legislative action."

"The only hope for the betterment of the race rests in individual soul culture."

"In taking a step in this direction your process has been so original and unique that it must not a piece for other concerns until finally the whole country gets flavored with genuine, practical Christianity."

"I shall do all that lies in my power to aid in the appreciation of Grape-Nuts, not so much for the sake of the food itself as for the accompanying suggestions."

"Visiting Battle Creek the other day with a friend, Dr. Kelly of Evanston, Illinois, while I was consulting with Mr. Gregory, my friend visited your factories and came away greatly amazed, not only at the luxurious furnishings of the offices generally and the general equipment of the place, but with the sweet spirit of courtesy and kindness that seemed to fill the air with a spiritual ozone that was good to breathe."

"The principles expressed in the little booklet, 'The Road to Wellville,' I well know are practical and they work in business of all kinds, including sanctuaries, as will be fairly tested before time is done."

"I know you will not regard this letter of appreciation as an intruding one. It is simply the salutation of good fellowship to you from a man who, although he has never seen you, feels drawn to you by the kinship of thought."

"The only thing that makes a man live forever in the hearts of his countrymen and his race is the good that he does. Your position in this respect is an enviable one and I wish to extend my congratulations."

Yours respectfully,
E. H. PRATT.

UNIQUE EXPERIENCE OF SHERIFF RANSOM

Brother-in-law of Prisoner He Was Taking to Waupun Drives Them to Prison Doors.

Many men have made excuses as to the cause of being driven to state's prison, but it remained for Claire Bird, the Holott man sentenced to spend the next two years behind the bars at Waupun, to have the pleasure of knowing that it was his brother-in-law who drove himself and Sheriff Ransom from the station at Chester to the prison gates yesterday, neither man showing any signs of recognition of the other.

There is usually a luck waiting at the Chester station to meet the train and assist in taking the prisoners to their new abiding place. But when Sheriff Ransom arrived with Bird yesterday noon, none was in sight. The former asked his charge how they were to get over and he replied that there was a livery down the street a short ways. They proceeded to the designated place and Mr. Ransom hired a hack to take them on their three-mile ride. During the trip over the sheriff started a conversation with the driver and in a casual way, asked him if he was acquainted in the southern part of the state. The man said that he was not very well acquainted but that he had two sisters in Holott and that one of them was a Mrs. Claire Bird. If it was not for the fact that our sheriff is a man of discretion and sound judgment, he might have told the man on the spot that it was his brother-in-law that he was taking to prison, but never a word did he say and the man was never the wiser.

Astronomer's Use of Bicycle Wheel.
An interesting use has been found in astronomy for the bicycle wheel. By fitting such a wheel with a series of opaque screens placed at regular intervals and then rotating it with the aid of a small motor at the rate of from 30 to 60 turns in a minute before the camera used to photograph meteors, one investigator has succeeded in measuring the velocity of the meteor's flight. The principle depends upon the interruptions produced by the screens in the trails of light made upon the photographic plates by the flying meteor. The velocity of the wheel is known at every instant by means of a chronographic record, and the length of the interruptions indicates the speed of the meteor.—Scientific American.

JOSIAH WRIGHT PASSED AWAY

PIONEER BUSINESS MAN DIED AT HIS HOME THIS MORNING.

WAS PROMINENT IN CHURCH

Work—A True Christian Character—Death Due to Severe Attack of Pneumonia.

Josiah T. Wright died at his home on Mineral Point avenue at two o'clock this morning as the result of pneumonia. The disease developed after a coal gas accident, in which Mr. Wright was overcome, a week ago. While he rallied and regained consciousness, the aftereffects were too much for him to withstand and his friends have realized for a number of days that the end was near.

Josiah Taylor Wright was born in Syracuse, New York, on the ninth day of June, 1830. His boyhood life was spent in his native town, and after leaving school he engaged in mercantile business in New York City.

In 1854 the family came west and located in Janesville. A year later Mr. Wright was married to Miss Fannie Hunt of Auburn, New York, and the Wright home on Mineral Point avenue, established more than half a century ago, sheltered both families.

It was one of the happy homes of the city, noted for hospitality and good cheer. The family circle was invaded when the war of the rebellion broke out, and shortly after the war the mother died and in 1888 the father passed on.

Mr. Wright engaged in the hide and leather business with his father, shortly after coming to Janesville, and a few years later formed a partnership with his wife's brother, Lewis Hunt, under the firm name of Wright and Hunt, occupying the store at the corner of Milwaukee and Jackson streets, which has so long been Mr. Wright's business home.

His long and eventful career in commercial life is closed without a blemish on either reputation or character, for his honesty was of the Puritan type, and the enthusiasm with which he was inspired was contagious and wholesome.

It is often said that the record of a man's life is its own best eulogy, and while this is true, there are some things concerning the character of this life that merit more than passing notice.

Mr. Wright was a Christian optimist. Every cloud to him had a silver lining.

and the sunshine which he radiated enveloped his life so completely that he lived in an atmosphere of perpetual peace. On good terms, not only with himself, but with all mankind, for he thought no evil, and the tongue of slander never annoyed him.

The kindly smile which lighted his face when he grasped your hand, meant something, for it betokened sympathy, as much as the voice or full of tender expression.

He was free from egotism, and so unconventional that everybody felt at home in his presence. While deprived of children in his own home he was a lover of children, and for many years was superintendent of the Congregational church Sunday school.

Later he organized the Rock County Sunday School association and was an active worker throughout the country districts. During these years he frequently visited the country farm, and the inmates enjoyed many pleasant Sunday afternoons through his efforts to entertain.

Not looking for great things, and with no thought of fame, he took up the work close at hand, bringing joy and gladness to many hearts because of the touch of human sympathy which inspired his life.

Graciousness is a fleeting thing, but goodness abides, and the memory of the life just closed will linger as a sacred memory for it was a purposeful life, free from selfishness and devoted to service.

Besides a wife, two sisters remain: Mrs. Edward Rucker of this city, and Mrs. Elizabeth Doukin of Philadelphia. The funeral will be held from the home Sunday afternoon at 2:30, the Rev. David Beaton officiating. The family request no flowers.

BELOVED SHARON YOUNG WOMAN PASSED AWAY

Miss Laura Pearson, Aged Thirty,
Died at Her Home After Several Years of Ill Health.

(Special to the Gazette.)
Sharon, Jan. 20.—On Sunday afternoon, last, at her home in this village, occurred the death of Miss Laura Pearson, aged 30 years, daughter of Mrs. Ella Pearson.

Miss Pearson was born in this village on Jan. 15, 1881. Here she attended school, grew to womanhood and graduated with the class of 1902. The next fall she entered the state university at Madison, but because of ill health was compelled to give up her studies before the end of the first year, and since that time had been under the doctor's care. Everything in the power of loving hands and medical science was done for her, but she continued to fail. She never complained of her lot, and though at times her suffering was intense she was ever cheerful. While she is gone from the scenes, the conflicts, the sorrows, and pleasures of life, she will still live in the hearts of all who knew her. Her retiring nature led her to hide her best qualities from public gaze, but they were revealed to those who enjoyed her acquaintance. Yet it was in her home with her own grief-stricken mother that her true worth was most conspicuous. Her future was full of promise and we dare not ask why she was taken away in her prime, unless, as flowers are picked before the frost finds them, that we may not witness their decay. The funeral was held Tuesday at the home, Rev. W. J. Barnett officiating. Burial was in the Oakwood cemetery.

There were plenty of Irish kings in early history and they were good fighters. Some historians have traced the line of native sovereigns of Ireland back as far as the time of the flood. Heber and Heremon in 1300, B. C., are the first of whom there is any absolute certainty. Following them were 169 kings all of whom except fifteen died in battle or otherwise by violence. Home rule was in existence until 1172.

Makes Pulling Easy.

William Hardell, American consul at Hamburg, Germany, reports the discovery by Dr. Rindard, a Geneva dentist, that blue rays of light can be used as an anesthetic in the extraction of teeth.

A Clever Idea.

A girl who has just returned from a long visit, during which she collected a number of spoons which are souvenirs of the various places visited, recently made them the key to a table talk at a little luncheon. Beside each plate were two spoons, bearing pictures or seals of various cities and during the luncheon the guests were asked to tell some interesting fact about that particular city. All the guests declared that it was not only a unique method of directing the conversation, but the means of making the occasion most interesting.

THE PIECE WORK PLAN.

In the discussion brought out by Mr. Brandegee's criticism on railway efficiency, much has been said about the piece work plan, the Boston attorney contending that if railway shops would adopt it, that large savings would result.

The railroads contend that they are prohibited by the demands of labor unions, and that whenever the system has been tried, long and expensive strikes have followed, and they have been obliged to return to the time system.

The railroads are peculiarly situated as they are obliged to run their trains every day, and this means that their shops can never close without great loss and serious inconvenience.

The Erie road, some time ago, closed its shops for ten months, in attempting to introduce a piece-work plan, and sent its locomotives to the Baldwin Engine works for repairs.
The charges averaged $1,500 on each engine, as against $1,500 when the work was done in the company's shop,
and the men went out.

While the piece-work proposition is ruled out, so far as railroad shop work is concerned, it frequently proves a failure in other lines of industries because of the selfishness of employees.

The custom is to select the most expert workmen as piece-makers, and establish a scale of prices based on what they can produce in a given number of hours.

If they find that the piece-maker is making a little money, they reduce the scale, so that it is not possible for him to make more than fair wages, while the average man is poorly rewarded for his work. The Wall Street Journal has taken a lively interest in this discussion, and the following letter, addressed to the paper, a day or two ago, is enlightening.

"Your editorial of today, 'Efficiency and the Labor Union,' prompts me to ask you a question I have for some time had in mind regarding the attitude of labor towards piece-work. I had occasion some time ago to be thrown rather closely, in an unofficial capacity, with a man from a shop here where the piece-work system prevailed.

"I gathered from him that the objection of the shop worker to piece-work lay in the fact that the employer fixed the price to be paid and that this price was on a sliding scale which prevented any employee from earning more than a certain maximum amount.

Announcement of a cut in price was usually prefaced by the statement, by the foreman in charge, that the workmen were 'making too much money.'
If but one man showed himself a faster operator than the rest of his gang,
the price would nevertheless be reduced for the whole, on the plea that the others were simply loafing.

"It seems needless to point out the vicious effects of this policy upon the workman.

"My informant was not a 'labor man,' and cared only to be allowed to do his best and earn enough to support his family. He said 'all of the men would vastly prefer a time pay basis to piece-work under the conditions described.

"I do not remember ever having seen a discussion of this aspect of the matter in your columns and would be much interested to hear your comments.

"The shop mentioned is in one of the largest and most important factories in the country."

"The point is well taken. There is no question that the abuse of piece-work was itself one of the most important causes in the creation of the labor union. Many employers have, in the past, used the ability of one workman to extort an unfair return from the others. The Brandegee efficiency plan contemplates giving the largest wages to the workman showing the largest output. Manufacturers are greedy for profits, and it is impossible not to feel a good deal of sympathy for the union contention that 'speeding up' will be applied to the detriment of the employee."

"There are always two sides to a question, and judgment is largely based on the viewpoint. The employer owes it to the employee to encourage ambition and reward ability, and every employee owes to his work
his best efforts of hand and brain.
When both are accorded, the principles of justice are recognized in a mutual dependency and industrial peace is the outcome.

When Col. Nicholas Smith was visiting in the city last fall, he was interested in looking through the files of the Gazette which contained the history of the Fairchild-Spooner campaign, because Spooner gave him credit for a series of editorials which influenced sentiment, and resulted in his election. Mr. Smith was active in many campaigns, during his long newspaper career, and was usually on the winning side. He enjoyed a wide acquaintance with the public men of his day, enjoying their confidence in rare degree.

One of the bills to be presented to the legislature provides for an illustrated primer printed at public expense for the benefit of candidates in the primary election. These primers are to contain a picture of the candidates at ten dollars a throw and a two-hundred word biography or other authoritative word biography of the aspirant, with a penalty of $500 for every victim who don't contribute.
With that sort of inducement, advertising ought to come easy. There must be a surplus of brains dug around the state capital these days.

Champ Clark will be the speaker of the next house of representatives, and a disgruntled contingency will howl about Clarkism instead of Cannonism.
Every speaker of the house is a boss,
not from choice, but because of necessity, and he is selected because of his ability to lead and control. No negative character ever occupies this important chairmanship, and the new speaker has several ideas of his own.

It is estimated that 150,000 tourists visit Florida every winter, attracted by the tropical climate. This number is being largely augmented this winter by a horde of land-seekers who hope to amass a fortune on ten acres of saw-grass land. As a result, the southern railroads are taxed to their capacity, and hotel men wear a perpetual smile.

Senator La Follette is coming west
in a few days to encourage the brothers in their arduous task of electing a United States senator. His faithful colleague, "Uncle Ike," will stay by the stuff in Washington, until relieved by his old friends, the insurgents.
This game of politics is a great game.
Sometimes you see it, but more often
it is simply an optical illusion.

The city of Appleton votes on the commission plan of government, Feb.
7, while Oshkosh, Fond du Lac and Green Bay are preparing to follow suit. The city of Eau Claire, after eight months' experience, is so much pleased with results that everybody is enthusiastic. Janesville lost her opportunity to lead the procession.

It will be noticed that Senator Blum is taking no part in the Lorimer investigation. He is doubtless of the opinion that evidence which can be bought and sold is not the most reliable.

The government can manage to jog along without a Bureau of Health, so long as Collier's, the great national weekly and guardian of everything in sight, stays by the job.

To Do Read Twice.
Two friends, a weaver and a tailor,
became in time enemies, so much so that the tailor spoke much evil of the weaver behind his back, though the weaver always spoke well of the tailor, who spoke so ill of him, he replied: "Madame, we are both lars."

—From the Spanish.

Heart to Heart
Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

YOUR DAUGHTER.

Princess Mary of England is learning shorthand and typewriting and is becoming quite proficient at both.

Well, why not?
Is there any reason why a king's daughter should be denied her chance to be useful?

Good Queen Victoria stamped many of her virtues on her posterity, and her descendants are showing proficiency even to the fourth generation.

Princess Mary, it is said, enjoys her work.
Which is all the better. If or she who can find satisfaction in a task has discovered the near secret to happiness.

Pleasure comes by doing, not dally-
ing or dabbling.

That the princess means business is shown by the fact that she has opened a bank account in the postoffice savings bank and expects to get real wages for her work and deposit the earnings.

Of course she will not open a public stenographer's office or go into business employment, though she is prepared to do that should the king business get slack.

Father George will have plenty of work for her at Buckingham palace.
She might be his majesty's private typewriter or social secretary for her mother, the queen.

Anyway—

"This Mary hath chosen the better part."
She has chosen an occupation in which she finds the delight of doing.
She will be able, if necessary, to make her own living.

And beyond all that—
She puts the stamp of her influence on useful service and lends a gracious dignity to all labor.

And your daughter?
Is she learning how to run a typewriter or nurse a patient or teach a school or conduct a home? Can she earn her living? Does she believe in service to the world? Is the dignity of work a part of her creed?

Or is she pampered and potted and made to believe that she is above the necessity for daily toil?
Is your daughter better than a king's?

As He Understood It.

"Why is it," asked the ambitious young orator, complaining to the editor of the morning paper, "that you always report me as having said
'among other things'?"

"Well, as I understand it, you are usually among other things when you say them."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Maybe.

"Why does a big crowd always gather when a man has a fit?"

"I suppose they want the address of his tailor."—Cleveland Leader.

Impatient Convalescent.

A diminutive church member, ardently devoted, recently had a bad case of measles, and found convalescence trying. At last she amazed her family by the impatient exclamation:
"Daddy, if I don't soon get well I'll be clear discouraged. Positively, I'd as soon be in heaven as here!"

ful tones, while rude

winds chilled its angle bones: "My master sits beside the fire, and there he'll talk, and never tire, of equal rights,

square deals and things of which the jaunty always shuns, and I stand up to the post, most ready to give up the ghost. I wouldn't give a pleasure, I wouldn't give a mighty pleasure for any scheme of equal rights that leaves dumb critters out at night.

The squarish deal that man can plan,

is framed exclusively for man; while

I wish the world were changed around,

FIRES—ROUT 1,000

Blazes Frighten Dwellers in the Lower East Side of New York.

New York, Jan. 20.—Fires on the lower east side caused damage estimated at $150,000 and drove 1,000 or more persons out of their homes. The greatest damage was caused by a blaze which burned out a six-story factory at 15-17 Elizabeth street.

The loss here was approximately $100,000, suffered chiefly by the owners of the building and small manufacturers of paper boxes who occupied the structure. Tenement dwellers for some distance around were routed out.

REALLY Painless Dentistry

"Did you ever before have a tooth extracted really without pain?" said I to the pleased patient as she was leaving the office. "NEVER!! BEFORE," she said. And that's the common thing with me every day.

I really seem to satisfy people's most optimistic desires in the way of Painless Dentistry.

Useful Gift for Invalid.
An invalid friend who is constantly confined to her bed, received a most welcome present. It was simply the high back and arms of an old rocking chair, with the seat sawed off. It was first padded generously with cotton (an old comforter would do), and then covered with bright cretonne.
Pockets could be sewed outside each arm for the handkerchief or other necessaries, if desired. It provides such a support as pillows alone cannot give, and affords the dear invalid so much comfort that the giver is more than repaid for the small amount of work required to make it.

Industry in Switzerland.
Dairy farming constitutes an important industry in Switzerland. The production and handling of large quantities of milk, consumed in numerous chocolate factories and milk-condensing concerns in the confederation, the domestic consumption of milk, butter and cheese and the manufacture of cheese for export, engage the attention and services of a large number of people.

HIGH SCHOOL DEBATE TO BE HELD TONIGHT

Jaysville Debating Team Will Meet
Aggregation From Beloit High School This Evening.

Jaysville High school debaters are all prepared to meet the Beloit team on the forenoon platform at the high school building at eight o'clock this evening. This is the first of the series of debates held under the auspices of the Beloit College Interstate Debating League and will determine whether Jaysville or Beloit will be eliminated from the race for the championship of the state and later for that of Wisconsin and Illinois. The question to be considered is whether the commission form of government was adopted in cities of 4,000 and 20,000 in Wisconsin and Illinois. The Jaysville team will uphold the affirmative side of the question with the following speakers: Glenn McArthur, Lawie
French and Oliver Cackow.

At four o'clock this afternoon the first and second teams of Beloit and Jaysville will meet in a double-header basketball game which promises to be a fast and furious one. This is Jays-ville's first regular high school game.

Green Foods for Pussey.

A woman who raises pedigree cats
for market declares that green foods in the winter are necessary to the health of the animals. For this she provides the so-called umbrella plant, belonging to the grass family, and easily grown, to which she allows the cats free access. This, of course, refers the plant for decorative purposes, but to many of our Miss Angora's health is more to be desired than many umbrella plants.—Designer.

SPIRIT MESSAGE FROM MRS. EDDY

Mrs. Minnie L. Gove is the Medium of Communication.

WRITES OF STRANGE TRANCES

Statement of Mrs. Station That Mrs. Eddy Would Return to Earth in Flesh is an Error Says Spirit—Mrs. Gove a Disbeliever.

Boston, Jan. 20.—Messages from Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy have reached Mrs. Minnie L. Gove, wife of Clarence Gove of Randolph, according to a statement made by her. Mrs. Gove says she is not a spiritualist, and is not a Christian Scientist. She is unable to account for the strange trances which she says overcome her and in which her hand is guided to write messages. The messages are addressed to Mrs. Gove's father, James Littlefield, of 28 New Hall street, Lynn. Mr. Littlefield knew Mrs. Eddy well when she lived in Lynn years ago. "I am not a spiritualist," said Mrs. Gove. "I have never believed in such things, now have I any sympathy with the Christian Science movement. It is strange that I should be selected as the medium of Mrs. Eddy's communication. When these trances come over me I cannot help writing what I do. Some strange force guides my hand."

In addition to receiving messages which purport to come from Mrs. Eddy she says she has received several from the late Grover Cleveland and Prof. William James.

In one of the messages she believes came from Mrs. Eddy it is declared that the statement made by Mrs. Augusta Station of New York that the Christian Science leader would return to earth in the flesh "was an error." She referred to her earthly body as merely a shell and said it would not again be inhabited. The message also declared that there was no need of keeping a watch over the touch where the body lies and that it would be best to discontinue the vigil.

Another of the messages which purport to be from Mrs. Eddy is to the effect that the Christian Science leader was mistaken about many things pertaining to the future life while she was in the flesh. According to Mrs. Gove Mrs. Eddy has urged her to become more proficient in technicalities so that the departed Christian Scientist may be enabled to express better through her, amended views on the spiritual life.

STAGE SWORD STABS MAN

Flee Off Handle and Is Imbedded in Forehead of Patron.

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 20.—Robert Shiverick, son of a wealthy American who came recently from Cornell university, was probably fatally injured in the Grand Opera house.

Several soldiers were on the stage fencing when one of the sword blades flew off the handle and over the footlights. The point struck Young Shiverick squarely in the center of the forehead. It penetrated his skull and remained imbedded.

OFFICER KILLS SELF

Fearful Poison as Result of Bite Sustained in Fight.

Hammond, Ind., Jan. 20.—Because in a fight with several foreigners he arrested some time ago one of them bit him on the finger and he feared death as a result, Officer John Hughes of the Whiting police force, shot and killed himself at his home here.

Hughes suffered pain from the infection and feared poisoning. His wife sat opposite him in a rocker when he drew a revolver and shot himself through his heart.

JUDGE OPPOSED TO JAILS.
Judge Henry E. McGinn.

Portland, Ore.—(Special.)—Declaring that iron cages are for beasts, not men, and that the penitentiaries are too full now, Henry E. McGinn, newly elected circuit judge for this county, has begun his judicial career by freeing prisoners convicted in his court. He has been dubbed "Fresh Start" McGinn, for he believes all but hardened offenders can be turned from the error of their way and made into useful citizens.

RICH SCOTCHMAN DEAD

Eno Whytehall Leaves Will Disinheriting His Family.

Wording of Will Most Emphatic in Composition and Is Followed by Reasons for His Action.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 20.—The dead man mysteriously left at the door of Mrs. Young Jones was, through evidence of papers in his valise, identified as Eno Whytehall, a Scotchman, said to be a millionaire, the owner of large shares of stock in the street railways of Hamburg, Germany, philanthropist and traveler. He came to Richmond from New York last Monday. An examination of his effects revealed an extraordinary will, which in part says:

"With my own hand, free will and special clauses I do hereby most emphatically disinherit and cut off my wife, Sophie E., and my two children, namely my son, Benjamin B., and my daughter, Maud S., with $1 each and $1 only."

He further gives as a reason for this disposition that his wife is unmercifully cruel, a most infamous prevaricator, and a false hearted, inhuman wife and mother. For fifteen years, he says, he had not lived with his wife, or in any way recognized his family.

NEGRO ATTACKS WOMAN

Mob Chases Man and Policeman Fires at Fugitive, but He Escapes.

Houston, Tex., Jan. 20.—Mrs. Barbara Hefschelder, 70 years old, was attacked by a negro, who bit off her upper lip.

A crowd, attracted by her screams, pursued the negro. The fugitive fell when fired at by a patrolman, but regained his feet and escaped.

Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota, who is in line to succeed the late Senator Elkins as chairman of the state committee on interstate commerce.

Thrashing Machines.

The flail was the only instrument formerly used for thrashing grain. The Romans used a machine called the tribulum—a sledge loaded with stones or iron, drawn over the grain sheaves by horses or oxen. The first machine attempted in modern times was invented by Michael Menzies at Edinburgh, about 1732. Another was invented in 1776. It is only within the past thirty-five years that the thrashing machine was brought to anything like perfection.

Greatest of the Arts.

That music is, in many respects, the greatest of the arts needs no detailed proof. This is a clear inference to be drawn from the eulogistic remarks of Shakespeare, Browning, Schopenhauer, Walter Pater and Walt Whitman—all men who had thought deeply on the subject and who had weighed their words.

SUCCEEDS FATHER AS SENATOR FROM WEST VIRGINIA.
Davis Elkins, son of the late senator from West Virginia.

Wheeling, W. Va.—The appointment of Davis Elkins, son of the late Senator Elkins from this state, to fill out the term of his father, has met with almost universal approval. He is a bright, active man and inherits from his father the strength which made him during his life a most powerful factor in West Virginia politics.

By the will of his father Davis Elkins becomes executor of the estate, which is valued at several million dollars, and shares equally with the other heirs in the inheritance.

Depends on Crops.

The financial barometer rises or falls with assurances of promise of greater or lesser crops. With large crops every interest of manufacturers, trade, transportation and commerce are active with promise of general prosperity, and no private interests should be able in any manner to obtain preference or advantage over an industry upon which the prosperity of all great interests are so largely dependent.

No Use Worrying.

There's two things that are no use worrying about, just two. One of 'em is the thing that a body can't help. 'Tother is the thing that a body can help.—"Aunt Huldah," by G. M. Cooke and A. Macgown.

received from one of our satisfied buyers. We have hundreds of the same kind on file.

Crystal City, Texas,
January 10, 1911.
My Dear Mr. Williams,
Janesville, Wis.
They got the pumpkins yesterday on the land those hundreds of dollars on last excursion and they were so well pleased with the flow of water they followed Mr. Buckingham in town and contracted for another large tract of land. His office was crowded last night and he told me he sold more land yesterday and today through the relatives and friends of the people that came down on the last excursion than they did on the excursion I first came down on.
The buyer for this Dinkard colony, you remember, spent a year and a half traveling looking for a location. This speaks well for Cross "S".
There were 4 pumping engines delivered here last night. I believe forcing these wells with a pump makes them equal to two flowing wells. Mr. Buckingham's contract with Dr. Patter for all of sect. 28 except 2 farms I got for my cousin. Dr. Patter has sold 15 farms on sect. 20 to a friend of his in Vermont that has never been here. He wired he would be here on the 17th excursion with about 10 men and they would, he felt sure, take all of sect. 28.
I was offered $25.00 profit on my river farm. I can put water on this land for $1,000.00. Thank you, I don't want $200. for it. I see too many that got from $200 to $500 for their crop last year.
The weather in grand. We have had every meal since we have been here on the porch except one. It was not too cool then but the breeze kept blowing the lamp out.
We expect 25 Mexicans from over the line tomorrow. hired them for 50c, if they don't get wise coming up and want 50c.
When anyone comes home from Janesville, tell them I will be glad to see them. They will be glad they came. I feel like hugging you for getting me down here.
With best wishes, I am,
Yours truly,
W. T. BEST.
P. S.—Please start tractor from there, after my car household goods, 20 to a friend of his in Vermont that not here yet.

Not an Enterprise for the "Quitter."

By JOHN WANAMAKER

If there is one enterprise on earth that a "quitter" should leave entirely alone, it is advertising. To make a success of advertising one must be prepared to stick like a barnacle on a boat's bottom.

He should know before he begins it that he must spend money—lots of it.

Somebody must tell him that he cannot hope to reap results commensurate with his expenditure early in the game.

Advertising does not jerk; it pulls. It begins very gently at first, but the pull is steady. It increases day by day and year by year, until it exerts an irresistible dower.

READ GAZETTE WANT ADS

Hugo Planned Own Advertising.
It may not be generally known that Victor Hugo used to draft the advertisements of his own books, instead of leaving the task to his publishers. His correspondence with his Belgian publishers gives the following example of the great novelist's advertising style: "After the middle ages, the present time; such is the subject of Victor Hugo's double study. What he did for Gothic art in 'Notre Dame de Paris' that he has done for the modern world in 'Les Misérables.' The two books figure in his scheme to work as two mirrors reflecting the whole human life." An encouraging example to those young authors who cannot make up their minds how much modesty is enjoined by the best literary tradition.—London Globe.

Our Dead.
Our dead are never dead to us until we have forgotten them; they can be injured by us, they can be wounded; they know all our penitence, all our aching sense that their place is empty, all the wishes we bestow on the smallest relic of their presence.

A Study in English Composition.
In the eighth act Matty burned over three beaute and Wagner brutally assaulted the ambient atmosphere. Mike binged a daisy-cutter down the right line and perfoliated the middle sack on the first tensor over the rubber. Colins solved a fadeaway and sewed it up by stinging the pill to the flagpole and ambulating around the circuit. Jinks schaffed his too shot into the Devil's Den, going to the sixteenth and messed his niblick recover. His brnsay fourth connected with the kop bunker and he lifted. Jones got away a screamer and was on in three with a nifty mashie pitch. He rimmed his approach putt, sank his next for a bogey five and was dormie two.—Life.

Honesty.
There is no man, but for his own interest, hath an obligation to be honest; there may be sometimes temptations to be otherwise, but all cards cast up, he shall find it the greatest ease, the highest profit, the best pleasure, the most safety, and the noblest fame, to lay hold of the horns of this altar, which, in all assays, can in himself protect him.

What kind of vehicle?

Famous Flags.
The famous union jack which flew from Nelson's flagship, the Victory, and covered the admiral's body on the journey by water to Greenwich hospital, was sold at auction at Stevens' rooms in London, recently, for $630. The white ensign which hung at the rear of Nelson's funeral car on its way to St. Paul's was sold for $125.

The Phrenometer.
A curious electric machine is the phrenometer. The sensitive part of the instrument is a huge metal cap, which is brought slowly down upon the head, and clamping the skull gently but firmly, indicates the size of the "bumps" at 28 different points. The turning of a handle not only registers the size of each "bump," but prints and delivers the record.

Left-Handed Praise.

"I don't seem to hear so many compliments on my last poem," said the poetess, "as on its illustration. 'You just ought to see it,' they exclaim, 'it is so beautiful!'"
"It's the same way with me," put in the artist. "They come and stand before my pictures and sigh and say, 'Oh, what lovely frames you have!'"

Are You--YOU--a Booster?

Cities and enterprises are built by men with vision—men who will stake their capital and confidence in a venture and see the thing through—men who have apparently an unlimited supply of enthusiasm—men who substantiate their arguments by facts—men who are far-seeing enough to know that the ultimate success of any individual or interest means the success and growth of all.

Suppose, Mr. Booster, that you take it upon yourself to note how the principal cities of today have forged to the front, many of them overcoming the greatest obstacles, while, on the other hand, Janesville has nearly everything in its favor by virtue of its location, surroundings, natural resources, etc.

Then, if you are a booster for yourself, Get Together and Boost Janesville.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

There's so much bad in the best of us
And so much good in the worst of us
That it hardly behooves any of us
To criticize the rest of us."

You are all probably familiar with the above. Almost everybody likes to quote it once in a while, I find. But the reason I recall it today is that I have a new version to present.

"There's so much peculiarity in the most sane of us
And so much sanity in the most peculiar of us
That it hardly behooves any of us
To criticize the rest of us."

Now, I know that doesn't make at all good meter, but it does seem to me that it makes decidedly good sense.

Lives there a man, however sane, however practical, however hard on other people's peculiarities, who hasn't a pet obsession of his own? I doubt it.

One of the sanest men I know will not allow gas to be used in his home because he is afraid that some one will not turn the cock off tight and the family will be suffocated.

The gas pipes are in his apartment and there is a most excellent gas stove. It would be an immense help to his wife to be able to cook on this in summer instead of having a hot coal fire, but he simply will not hear of it.

No use to tell him that with proper care there is no danger in the use of gas.

He has an obsession on this subject. He can't be reasoned with. And yet in other respects he is most sane, level-headed, and logical. And when his next door neighbor, who has an equally powerful obsession on the subject of burglars, secures his doors with two or three bolts and locks, and installs an elaborate system of burglar alarms this man laughs heartily at him and calls it "hall tennymot."

"Even as you and I?"

Another point of view on this subject:

I know another man who is insanely timid in anything relating to fire. He has a set of precautions with which he goes through every night. He sets the kerosene on precautions. He fastens up all the lamprequis on the mantels over the heaters. He pours water on the open fire and does several other equally absurd things.

The man's wife thinks she has the most exasperating peculiarities in the world to deal with. She envies the first man's wife because she knows how sane he is on most subjects. She doesn't know about the gas obsession.

Most of us think that those particular peculiarities with which the members of our own family worry us are quite the most exasperating on earth. We envy our neighbors who don't have such things to put up with. It's only because we don't know the inside of their home lives. Like us with their only something worse.

Suppose the next time you feel inclined to protest against the vagaries of some member of your family you think of this, and also reflect on the possibility of YOUR having some obsession which on account of your propinquity to it you don't recognize as such.

Maybe then you'll feel less inclined to protest.

Fads and Fashion

New York, Jan. 12.—At the beginning of the winter season it was rumored that the winter would bring some radical changes in the fashionable silhouette. Those who for certain reasons, did not share the enthusiasm over the sylph like form which fashion made imperative, were delighted over these predictions, but it was their fate to be sadly disappointed. The narrow silhouette continued to rule supreme and, unless all signs and indications are misleading, it traces its lineage to the so-called "hobbit" of the ugly, ridiculous and senseless hobbles which will remain banished promises to continue in favor for some time to come.

The appearance of the latest models clearly indicate that skirts will not be much wider than those of last summer, but minus the ugly and cravie bindings. It is not to be hoped that ugly, ridiculous and senseless forsover.

The absolute simplicity of many models turned out by leading French houses is most encouraging to those who must have frocks made at home. The simple skirts, the tunics and the Japanese bodices are prominent features of today's styles, and are easily copied by the girl with simple fingers and a good pattern to help her along. The home frock offers immense possibilities to the girl on her own allowance.

Tunics that vary from ripples of hip length to long skirts that drop to within a few inches of the ground, are all in great favor and promise to retain their popularity for some time. They can be made of any material and can be weighted down with beads, fringe or with modified lower line, but they are the accepted lines for skirt trimming and that is the main thing.

One does not hear very much about shirtwaists nowadays, though those practical garments still have their uses; but the blouse is a very important item in the fashionable wardrobe despite the vogue of the one-piece frock. Unlike the one-piece frock, the blouse coat is satisfactory, but there are many days when the fur coat is too warm for comfort and the coat and skirt suit is an undesirable as it ever was.

This winter it is even more popular than ever, for the vogue of the velvet coat and skirt makes such a costume suitable for occasions when one might not consider the less dressy cloth tailored costume appropriate.

Many of the smartest tailored models in vogue are of the three piece type, a misnomer, since the model is usually a one-piece frock with coat. To avoid uncomfortable warmth all the upper part of the bodice is cut of chiffon lace or other sheer stuff. More thoroughly practical is a three piece model with such an arrangement, for with such an arrangement the degree of elaborateness in the costume may be adjusted to a sliding scale.

As a rule the blouse of today is not what people once understood by a separate blouse. It must match the costume or at least harmonize with it so admirably that it seems an integral part of it. All of which does not mean that the suit, material or trimming must enter into the composition of the blouse, though this arrangement is popular and where the three pieces are turned out by one maker one is likely to find this note.

The designers have taken up this problem of the blouse so earnestly that it is now possible to obtain ready made things of the kind in almost any modish color and in all degrees of elegance, and of course these models, while harmonizing with the coat and skirt, do not repeat their materials.

Chiffon is the most important of the blouse materials, with marquisette and net, charmeuse, meteor and the various exquisite and supple silken stuffs helping in the good work. The fact for velvet effects is particularly dominant in the sphere of the blouse and also into that of women who slip off their tailored coats at the restaurant, the luncheon or matinee reveal blouses veiled in chiffon or at least partially veiled in chiffon.

Many of the smartest are of extreme simplicity, the six long sleeves cut in one after the prevailing fashion and then running up to the base of the throat, or just a little below. This is practical for early wear because practically no yard waste because of white lace or chiffon or net is in evidence save in the collar, and that may be readily removed and changed or cleaned.

From Paris comes the immense vogue for the cloth-topped shoe. It is an expensive style, for to follow the original French idea the uppers should match the color of the gown, and that practically demands a pair of shoes for every costume. Any protest is met with open eyes and a surprising shrug. These cloth-topped shoes are procurable in plain colors, gray, tan and dull green predominating, while they check or shadow plaids are much in evidence among smartly dressed women. The heels are not the foolish French heels that have always been trying. They are looking archaic boots that give a good-looking arch to the foot, and yet a secure support.

For carriage wear there are beautiful models, fur-trimmed and quilted, into which the fortunate owner can slip her feet. Brocade boots are edged with fur and lined over the instep with gold or silver braid. Others are of soft suede, lined and topped with fur, and one of the newest fashions is of frogs, at the side.

For evening the styles are legion. Black satin and velvet, white kid and the gold and silver cloths are in the foremost ranks, due, perhaps, to the great demand for these materials for evening gowns. Little ornaments of tulle, lace and satin are made to adorn the plain slippers, and frequently two or three slippers will be sold with one pair of shoes. Beaded vamps are a natural outcome of the vogue for beading. The beaded styles are convincingly beautiful. Extremely high heels are the rule for evening slippers, so that women can look quite a little taller in the night.

Ribbons were never more beautiful nor more artistic than they are at present, and there is every evidence that as a result of their dalliance and richness they will be greatly worn. Already tea gowns are being entirely built of lace and ribbon, and entirely evening cloaks are composed of the same airy stuff.

Knitted scarfs are now very broad, and are fitted at the shoulder seams, in many there are standing collars that can be turned down, if you prefer. White and black combinations are the newest. They resemble the evening scarfs worn by men.

Blue and lavender are to be allied in millinery, in rough tweeds, changeable velvets and iridescent moire. Yellow combined with green is predicted for the coming season, and a touch of coral is suggested on both gowns and hats.

Chenille cloth resembling woolen crepe, of a soft texture and light in weight, will be used for spring dresses. Large patches of flat embroidery will be used on frocks of this material.

Bicycling is very popular with both the Japanese and Chinese residents of Formosa. Bicycle meets in which Japanese and Chinese participants are held twice a year in the capital city. Besides Chinese, Japanese and foreign spectators lining the circular track upon which the Japanese and Chinese contestants were racing their wheels, there were about 50 tattooed-faced savages of the head-hunter tribe.

The Apple as a Food.

With a barrel of apples in the cellar, one need never be at a loss for various dishes, as they combine well with other fruits and many vegetables. To prepare an apple for an invalid, wash, core and cook the apple in a little sugar and water until tender. Choose an apple that has a bright red peeling. Carefully remove it to a dish and take off the peeling. Scrape the red from the inside of the peeling and put it back on the cheek of the apple. Return the peeling to the sirup and cook to remove the rest of the color. Take out the peeling and place the apple in a pretty glass dish, pour around it the rose-colored sirup and serve, either hot or cold.

Apples With Almonds.—Wash, core and peel the apples, cook until tender in a sirup of sugar and water. Remove the apples as soon as they are evenly pierced with a fork. Prepare some almonds by blanching and cutting into quarters lengthwise. Put the almonds point first into the apple, covering it with the almonds. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and pour in the sirup around them and brown in the oven. Serve cold with whipped cream.

Sweet Apples With Quinces.—Prepare the apples without peeling; core and fill the cavities with bits of quinces and sugar. Bake slowly, basting with melted butter and sirup.

Apple Crusts.—This is a dish that makes an attractive and wholesome dessert for children: Cut stale bread in circles, lay half of a peeled, cored apple, cut crosswise, on each piece. Bake carefully to keep the shape of the apple, and bake with butter and a little lemon juice with sugar. Serve sprinkled with powdered sugar, either hot or cold.

Apples Baked With Prunes.—Select tart apples and peel or not, as preferred. Core and fill the centers with stewed prunes, sliced and drained. Bake slowly, basting with the prune juice, or with lemon juice, melted butter or a sirup with a little grated lemon peel. Two or three cloves may be stuck into the apple and removed before serving. Serve cold with cream.

KEEPING CHILDREN LOVABLE.

There is a Danish proverb which says: "A pet child has many names." meaning, of course, that according to each opinion of the child is so in the child.

Childhood is beautiful! Children are naturally lovable and loving. Their innate traits of innocence and goodness inspire affection and admiration, if it is not adoration.

The pliant little face that looks into yours with the love-light shining through its eyes must elicit your sympathy, if it does not inspire your affection, and it must stir up everything that is noble and good within you.

Because of the happy and often times wistful little face, because of the downy lips that press themselves to your cheek and the warm little arms that encircle your neck in the purest of unselfish love, you are strengthened and made fit for the battle with the world. Because of the little one who believes in you and loves you, you want to live right, you want to do right, you want to always return home with your banner clean and unsullied.

You love the little form, you adore the child whose trouble makes you upon earth return you make to your home and you want everyone else to love it. But you can't expect that they will if your love only arouses in it selfishness and other undesirable traits that make it disagreeable to others.

Because the little one is bright and "cute" is no reason why it should become a nuisance to others. The cute reply baby nukes in her innocent, innocent way, under your encouragement, may in a few months, become real impudence, offensive to others. The little wayward act which today may be interesting and amusing because a revelation of character may in some tomorrow be a matter of disgrace if permitted to develop or if encouraged to grow.

It is easy to encourage and develop lovable traits in a child and it is also easy to allow the unlovable ones to form, for these latter need no encouragement after they have once started. The little child and its habits of thought and action in the hands of those responsible for its training are like pieces of pottery clay—easily shaped and fashioned into something lovable, lovely and beautiful, or something ugly and unappealing. If the latter, it is no fault of the child, but rather of the father who allowed good material to go to waste.

A child started right and kept right by the tenderest sort of direction is not likely to be among those who "have many names," but it rather lives in the hearts of all who come in to the circle of its little life.

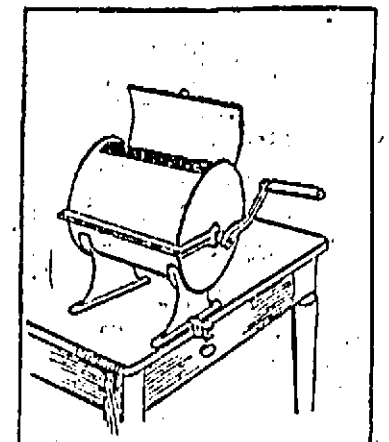

Help the child to get the sweetness out of life as the bee extracts the honey from the flower, but showing it where the beautiful things in life lie and how it may obtain them.

HAND BREAD MIXER

Spiral Blade Kneads the Dough as the Handle Turns.

A bread making machine, which will quickly knead enough dough to make loaves to six loaves of bread, has been invented by a New Jersey man. The machine is in the form of a cylinder, which can be changed fast to the kitchen table, and which has a lid hinged to the top. The cylinder is of solid blade, which is operated by a handle at one end. The dough is poured inside, and as the handle turns it mixes and kneads by compression along the ends of the cylinder. The constituent of the dough can be judged by the difficulty with which the handle works without the trouble of lifting the lid. This method of kneading is not only much easier and quicker than doing the work by hand, but is more sanitary. If the machine is kept clean it is likely to be much cleaner than the cook's hands, no matter how often she washes them.

MIXES DOUGH BY COMPRESSION

DAILY DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist

IMPORTANT PRINCIPLE URGED BY HEALTH BOARD.

"As far as possible each meal should consist of articles requiring about the same time to digest," says the new book of instructions on the treatment of consumption, issued by the Illinois board of health. This is an important principle in diet, especially for the sick and the aged. The energy wasted in adaptation to complex and constantly varying diet cannot be used for recuperation by the invalid nor for work by the strong. I have shown that the athlete can gain steadily in endurance by simplifying the diet, and the same principle applies in all work and in the treatment of the sick. This is the secret of the milk cure, not necessarily the best monodiet.

Sunkist Oranges are thin-skinned—seedless. They fairly melt in the mouth. There is no little "crust" in serving Sunkist oranges that they are truly the choicest oranges you can buy. Every Sunkist Orange comes in a Sunkist Wrapper.

After you have eaten Sunkist Oranges, you will be glad to know there are Sunkist Lemons, for they, too, are the most fruit of their kind. Never Sunkist Lemons are so deliciously flavored, so juicy, so sweet and so full of vitamin as Sunkist Lemons. Sunkist Lemons contain 51 percent more juice than common place lemons, which makes them most economical for lemonade and lemon juice.

The Skin and Not the Blood.

Until recently it has been a generally accepted proposition that eczema was a disease of the blood, and that in order to cure it, the blood must be purified and enriched by internal remedies. Careful experiments and scientific investigations have taught us that eczema is purely a skin disease, and curable through the skin alone. A great majority of persons afflicted with eczema have no other ailment, which is accepted as positive proof that it is purely a skin disease. Having established this fact, the Chemists of the American Drug and Chemical Association set about to compound a prescription that would successfully cope with this disease, and after much investigation brought out Meritol Eczema Remedy, the effect of which is marvelous. If you are afflicted with this loathsome disease, do not delay trying Meritol Eczema Remedy. You will be surprised at its prompt action, its soothing effect and its permanent results. Chicken Pot Pie

The Chef's Favorite

Some folks think that only "colored mummies" can cook chicken, but a trial of this famous chicken pot pie disproves that assertion. Every member of the family will thoroughly enjoy it.

K.C. Chicken Pot Pie, Baked Dumplings

One fowl cut in joints; 1/2 cup flour; 1/2 teaspoonful salt; black pepper; 2 cups flour; 3 level teaspoonfuls K.C. Baking Powder; 1/2 teaspoonful salt; 1/2 cup shortening; milk or cream.

Cover the fowl with boiling water and let simmer until tender, then remove to a baking dish. Mix the 1/2 cup flour, salt and black pepper with cold water to a smooth paste and use to thicken the broth. Remove the fat from the top of the broth if necessary before adding the thickener. Pour this gravy over the fowl, until it is nearly covered, and reserve the rest to serve apart. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt, three times; into this work the shortening and use cream or milk to make a dough, less stiff than for biscuits. Put this by spoonfuls over the fowl in the dish, which it should rest upon and completely cover. Let bake about 35 minutes.

When young, tender chickens are scarce, this presents a most satisfactory way of serving old birds. CREAMERY COMPANY DOES BIG BUSINESS

Evansville Concern Handles Large Amount Of Dairy Products In Course Of A Year.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Evansville, Jan. 19.—The D. E. Wood Butter Company's manufacturing plant here long since proved itself to be the largest concern of the kind in the west, but possibly the largest person has not fully realized the enormous sum of money involved in the conduct of this business, nor the tonnage of milk products handled.

The firm paid to the farmers in this vicinity during the past twelve months $100,000. This covers but a small portion of their business as they are heavy buyers of cream which they have shipped them within a radius of one hundred miles and which manufactured with the home product help to cheapen the cost of manufacture to home patrons.

They also bought and sold 2,187,083 pounds of creamery butter from individual creamery owners and manufacturers. They turned through the Evansville process plant during the year 3,250,000 pounds of process butter aggregating $812,121.00.

Following is a statement of showing made by four individual farmers all of whom are well known. Frank Hym from 11 cows, delivered 67573 pounds of milk during the past year producing a total of 2,440 pounds of butter fat with a total value of $1,075. Per cow that statement would read 6,598 pounds of milk, 223 pounds of butter fat, worth $97.73.

Frank Van Patten from 4 cows delivered 23,891 pounds of milk, yielding 887.9 pounds of butter fat, with a total value of $309.44. Per cow the statement reads 5,973 pounds of milk, 222 pounds of butter fat, valuing $82.41.

Lyle Patterson from 8 cows delivered a total of 47,584 pounds of milk, yielding 1,687.3 pounds of butter fat, at a value of $732.25. Per cow the amount of milk was 5,961, with 211 pounds of butter fat, worth $91.53.

George Keylock from 9 cows delivered 31,065 pounds of milk, yielding 2,347.1 pounds of butter fat at a value of $1,044.68. Per cow the statement reads 3,452 pounds of milk, 261 pounds of butter fat, worth $111.62.

DR. BEATON WILL LECTURE ON BURNS' GENIUS AND POETRY

Under the auspices of the Rock County Caledonian Society on the Evening Of January 25th.

The Rock County Caledonian Society of Janesville, Wisconsin, give their patronage January 25th, 1911 to a literary and musical entertainment of the poetical work of Robert Burns by David Beatson, who is recognized by American Students as the most able exponent of the lyrical genius of the peasant bard.

The lecture on "The Genius and Poetry of Robert Burns," has been delivered by Dr. Beatson in Chicago, throughout the northwest, and the Pacific Coast. It is not a talk about Burns, nor merely a literary analysis of his genius, but an interpretation of his thought, for Burns was the great thinker of his time, and a yeading of his poems in a way understood and appreciated by those who cannot read the "Brud Scots" for themselves.

Dr. Beatson's lecture will be illustrated by pictures of Scottish scenes of the Burns Country and by the songs of Burns rendered by the Musical Director of the Congregational Church, Mrs. Zoe Pearl Park.

As these songs will be specially selected and rendered for the purpose of illustrating the tenderness, pathos and humor of the Scottish music and the sweetness and kindliness of Scotch music, famous and well-known world over, the entertainment will appeal to all who love folk songs and native art, and is such a program as the Caledonian Society of Janesville, have long wished to give under their auspices on a Burns birthday.

Gary, Ind., Jan. 20.—The city of Gary is in the throes of a traction war, with 400 men at work on the streets; and the heads of rival companies running from place to place to get injunctions and counter injunctions from judges of the local courts.

The Gary and Interurban company undertook to build 2 1/2 miles of road through the city, using Broadway for its line, while the Gary and Southern Traction companies tried to place obstructions in the way till the courts could interfere.

The police tried to stop the laying of the track, but were met by deputy sheriffs, who promptly served a restraining order upon the chief and they marched back to headquarters. Then a race for another judge began, an order was secured from another court, and the work was stopped. Broadway is torn up from one end to the other and the tracks are laid more than half its length.

CLARK SELECTED AS NEW SPEAKER

Ways and Means Committee to Name House Committees.

AKIN READ OUT OF PARTY

Democratic Caucus Held and Members of New Ways and Means Committee Are Chosen to Rule Legislation.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Champ Clark, of Missouri, was unanimously nominated as speaker of the house of representatives of the Sixty-second congress at a caucus of the Democratic members-elect here. The action of the caucus insures Mr. Clark's election when the house convenes next December.

The caucus produced a sensation in the form of a resolution throwing Representative-elect Theron Akin, of the Twenty-fifth New York district, out of the Democratic party. The resolution was adopted with a whoop.

Akin used to be a Republican, but ran on an independent ticket in the Twenty-fifth district against Cyrus Durey. The Democrats endorsed him, and he was elected after a hard fight.

Akin, so New York Democrats say, has declared since election that he would not attend a Democratic caucus. The caucus went on record in favor of taking the power of appointing the house committees away from the speaker and looking it with the fourteen majority members of the ways and means committee.

The members who were in favor of having the speaker retain the power of committee appointment, led by Fitzgerald, of New York, were able to muster only 29 votes, and then the caucus voted unanimously to confer upon the Democratic members of the ways and means committee this important power.

Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama, was nominated as chairman of the ways and means committee. The thirteen other members who not only will control the appointment of committees in the house, but will initiate the Democratic revision of the tariff, are as follows:

D. W. Shackelford, Missouri; H. T. Rainey, Illinois; Lincoln Dixon, Indiana; Otis M. James, Kentucky; A. P. Peters, Massachusetts; W. H. Hammond, Minnesota; A. M. Palmer, Pennsylvania; William Hughes, New Jersey; Francis B. Harrison, New York; Claude Kitchin, North Carolina; Correll Hull, Tennessee; C. B. Randall, Texas; William G. Brantley, Georgia.

Representative Hay, of Virginia, presided and 229 of the 228 representatives-elect to the new house responded to the roll call. Among other resolutions offered was one by Representative Lewis, of Maryland, providing for the appointment of a committee of seven to study foreign parliamentary systems with a view to modernizing the procedure of the house and another by Representative Loback, of Nebraska, declaring it to be the sense of the caucus that Mr. Clark should be a member of the committee on ways and means.

Mr. Clark declared that it is the duty of the Democrats to take from the speaker the privilege of naming of house committees. He said Democrats had carried the house through the independent vote of the country. The independents had cast their ballots with the Democrats because they believed this reform would be adopted.

JANESVILLE MAN HELD UP AND RELIEVED OF CASH

C. J. Pire Robbed Of $29 By Lone Highwayman While On Way To Depot In Milwaukee.

A lone highwayman held up and robbed C. J. Pire, 22 Terrace street, of twenty-nine dollars in cash in Milwaukee several days ago. GARY TRACTION TIE-UP

Court Appealed to In Order to Stop Track Laying.

War Between Two Systems to Get Control of Streets of Steel City Causes Much Trouble.

Gary, Ind., Jan. 20.—The city of Gary is in the throes of a traction war, with 400 men at work on the streets; and the heads of rival companies running from place to place to get injunctions and counter injunctions from judges of the local courts.

The Gary and Interurban company undertook to build 2 1/2 miles of road through the city, using Broadway for its line, while the Gary and Southern Traction companies tried to place obstructions in the way till the courts could interfere.

The police tried to stop the laying of the track, but were met by deputy sheriffs, who promptly served a restraining order upon the chief and they marched back to headquarters. Then a race for another judge began, an order was secured from another court, and the work was stopped. Broadway is torn up from one end to the other and the tracks are laid more than half its length.

To Investigate Vote Buying. Danville, Ill., Jan. 20.—The Vermilion county grand jury will likely make its initial plunge into the investigation of wholesale traffic in votes by calling six of the wealthiest bankers in Danville, including J. S. Lesseure, president of the Danville National, and a son-in-law of Speaker Cannon.

CHAPTER XVIII.

An Attack.

The fact that their enemy was alone and that he was Roscoe himself was responsible for the conviction that Cayley's wings were all that stood between them and an attack. No terror attributable to human causes would have held back that solitary and altogether desperate outcast.

The thing in the situation which caused Cayley the most uneasiness was the fact that some time or other Roscoe would solve the mystery, would see him in the very act of taking to the air. This fear suggested an expedient to him one day as he was flying along near the snow-crested edge of the cliff.

"I don't know why I never thought of it before," he said to Jeanne as he alighted beside her a moment or two afterward; "but I've got it now—the way to prevent Roscoe from ever solving the mystery of your guardian angel. I thought of it when I saw the mound up on the cliff-head that is formed by the observatory. It can't be buried so very deep in the snow because the mound isn't so very big, I'm going up there now to dig it out, enough, at least, so that I can take wing from there."

"You never can dig out enough snow to get a running start up there," she objected.

"I shan't have to. I'll just dive off the cliff."

"Philip, you shan't!"

"Why not?"

"You know what you told me yourself. That none of the big birds can take to the air without a running start; and about taking polearms and birds like that up into high buildings and throwing them out of windows, and how they were always killed."

"That's because they've only got instinct instead of intelligence. None of their family had ever been thrown out of windows before, and they didn't know what to do. But I can get my start quite as safely that way as any other. Oh, yes, I've done it. Do you imagine, Jeanne dear, that I'd take an unnecessary risk so long as my life is the only possible protection there is for yours?"

He spent the rest of the day tunnelling out from the observatory. He did not dig in the snow; he simply picked it, gradually enlarging the space from a section the size of the pilot house door to a space at the cliff's edge wide enough for the full spread of his wings.

Jeanne was watching on the bench when he made his first flight from this aerial, and, in spite of her confidence in his powers, she endured a horrible moment or two. For he came hurtling down, head first, at an angle of 60 degrees; and he had traversed two-thirds of the distance to the beach before his line deflected outward and began curving up toward the horizontal.

When she saw that he was safe, that he had really done the thing he had said he could, she dropped down upon a bench, which was spread before the hut, and shut her eyes, for what she had seen had turned her a bit giddy.

That feeling passed in a moment. She opened her eyes and lay, stretched at full length, upon the bench, watching him as he wheeled and dipped, then towered aloft again in that fading violet sky, supremely masterful, majestically dominant of the unstable element he had conquered.

She sat up suddenly, erect, upon the bench, with the realization that it was nearly dark. Their hours of daylight were getting very scanty now. Today's allowance was gone, although it was not yet three in the afternoon.

She looked aloft for Cayley; but could not see him. Then, the next moment, she heard the whine of the air through his wings, and he sailed down on a long alant and alighted beside her.

He got clear of his planes with an unaccountable air of haste, and held out both hands to help her rise.

"What do we do with sentinels who go to sleep on duty?" he questioned with a laugh.

"I wasn't asleep," she said contritely, "but it was just about as bad. I was thinking—" She paused there, then added, "about you. What's the sentence of the court?"

"Already he had his wings folded up and was handing them to her."

"The sentence is that you shall be frightened with a bear story. There's a big one coming down the beach after you this very moment, and you're to surrender the revolver to me and stay under arrest in the hut until after I have killed him."

She did not need to be told that he was in earnest, in spite of the smile that went with his words. She turned about quickly and looked up the beach, sighting along Cayley's arm as he pointed. Even in the deep twilight she could hardly make out the shambling figure that was coming along toward them on all fours.

"Why does he move in that queer sort of way?" she whispered.

They had shrunk back into the shadow of the hut, the girl actually inside of the vestibule and Cayley on the door-step.

"He's been wounded. When I was perplexed I could make out the blood stains on his side," and he was leaving a track on the ice.

"Wounded in a fight with another bear?"

"No, that's not likely."

She asked no further explanation, but slipped into the hut. The next

"What Do We Do to Sentinels Who Go to Sleep?"

moment she was back with the field-glasses.

"While you're attending to the bear," she said in a whisper, "I'll just keep watch up the beach—for any one else."

The past weeks had made one difference in her attitude toward Cayley which she was now aware of, as she contrasted her sensations on seeing Philip stop forward, out of the shelter of the hut, to confront the bear, with those she had experienced when he had set out on a similar errand once before. She knew him now, and she had no fear for him. The feeling that thrilled her now was nearer akin to pride than anything else.

Cayley fully justified her confidence. The course the bear was taking would have brought him within 20 yards of their doorstep. When he first caught sight of Cayley he stopped, in two minds, apparently, whether to be hunted or to do the hunting himself. Then, as Cayley advanced upon him rather slowly, he decided, blazed at him venomously and roared up.

He was already badly enough wounded to have taken all the fight out of any other sort of animal, but half alive as he was, he cost Cayley four cartridges. Three of those shots Cayley was reasonably sure must have entered a vital spot. The first one took the bear between the eyes as he was rising. The second was fired into his open mouth. The third was probably deflected by the massive fore paw which he was holding across his body, in the attitude of a boxer. The fourth shot, however, penetrated his throat and probably smashed one of the two first vertebrae, for it seemed to bring the monster down all in a heap, where he finally lay still. Cayley could have reached him with his foot.

"Good shooting," said the girl quietly from the little vestibule.

He reloaded the revolver, letting the empty shells drop unheeded on the ice at his feet. He gave the weapon back to the girl, and bent over the bear.

"I'm less interested in what I did to him," he said, "than in what he got from the enemy who first attacked him."

The light was almost gone, so that all he could see were two or three irregular dark stains upon the white fur. A wound in the flank, which none of Cayley's shots could have accounted for, he explored with practiced hand.

Watching him as he did so, the girl could see that he had found something unexpected, something which surprised him greatly. And there was more than surprise. There was alarmed urgency in his voice when he spoke to her. He offered no explanation. Merely told her to go into the hut and make fast the solid wooden shutters over the windows. He would come in and would tell her what it was all about, in a moment.

The girl had hardly finished the task he had given her, when he came in. In his blood-stained hand he was holding out something for her inspection.

Conquering a feeling of repugnance, she bent over the hand, cast one glance at the thing it contained and then started up and gazed, wide-eyed, into his face.

"A bullet!" she said. "But—but we thought that Roscoe wasn't armed—not with fire arms, I mean."

Cayley nodded. "But this seems to be pretty good evidence that he is."

That's why I sent you into the hut. It occurred to me that he might be following the bear, and that the lighted windows might give him a chance for a shot at one of us. No matter what superstitious fears he has, he could hardly be so much afraid to fire at us from a safe distance, if we happened to offer a fair mark."

"But we must have offered him that a hundred times in the last weeks, that is, if his rifle had anything like a modern range."

"That bullet is certainly a modern piece of ordnance," said Cayley. "It's soft-point and steel-jacketed."

"It pays to read the ads."

"It's been wounded. When I was perplexed I could make out the blood stains on his side," and he was leaving a track on the ice.

"After all," he said, "it's only one more mystery, and I don't know that one more can make any great difference. Not in our way of life, certainly."

Both tried to stick to that view of it and, for the present, to dismiss conjecture upon the new topic from their minds, but they did not succeed very well. The idea that forced itself upon them, in spite of their attempt to discredit it, was that Roscoe's acquisition of a modern, long-range weapon with ammunition to match did not date back to the murder of Captain Fielding, nor to the disappearance of the Aurora, but that he had found the weapon, by some strange chance, only very recently, perhaps within a day or two. It was a disquieting thought, at best.

It was time for Cayley to turn in and for Jeanne to begin her evening watch alone, but before that happened they paid an extra amount of attention to the security of their doors and windows.

It was a little before 11 o'clock when Cayley came out of a deep sleep to find her bending over him, shaking him by the shoulder and crying out his name.

"Get up quickly!" she said when she saw that he was awake. "Philip, the hut's on fire!"

CHAPTER XIX.

Roscoe.

Roscoe had never been able to clear up his doubt as to Jeanne's identity, nor to solve the mystery of Cayley's appearance in the air. The doubt and the mystery tormented him worse than any final conviction could have done. When he thought, as he sometimes did, that the cause of all his terror, the thing which kept him penned up here in the cave and denied him access to more than the furthest edges of the beach, might be just a rather defenseless human couple, a man and a woman, and the woman beautiful, young, alluring—when he thought of all that he would go off into transports of rage, which left even his gigantic body limp and exhausted. If that were the situation, he might have killed the man weeks ago and taken possession of the woman.

The thing that kept him sane was, in itself, a species of insanity, the passion for gold which had led him to murder Captain Fielding. Every day he tramped up the glacier to the gold ledge and there, while the light lasted, he worked, cutting the precious metal out of the rock, and with infinite labor boating it pure.

As the weeks and months dragged along, this unvaried routine more than compensated for the solitude and the terrors his superstition thrust upon him, and gradually restored him to his old normal, formidable, brutal self. On the day when he made the discovery that was to terminate the long series of golden days which Jeanne and Philip had been enjoying, he was, again, the very man who, during those long years of exile, had dominated crew and captain of the Walrus and bent them to his will.

He was returning from the ledge along the crown of the glacier, when, on the day of this discovery, he found that his accustomed path was interrupted by a new fissure in the ice: it had occurred since he had come that way in the morning, and was too broad to leap across. So he was forced to descend by the rougher and more difficult track which lay along the moraine.

Before he had gone three paces along this track his eye made out something, just off his path and a little below it, which caused him at first to utter a snarl of anger, but led him the next moment to give a wild blasphemous yell of joy.

The great fissure which had opened in the ice had done, in an instant, what the party from the Aurora had failed to do after hours of hard labor—it had yielded up the body of Perry Hunter, which, during all those months, it had kept imprisoned.

"I Suffered Intense Pains in My Left Side."

Do you realize it is better to be safe than sorry, that it is the best policy to lock the stable door before the horse is stolen?

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy

cured Mrs. C. C. Gokey, of a stubborn case of heart disease, such as thousands are now suffering with. Read what she says:

"Before I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I had been suffering from heart trouble for over five years. I had grown so weak that it was impossible for me to do thirty minutes work in a whole day. I suffered intense pains in my left side and under the left shoulder blade. I could not sleep on the left side, and was so short of breath that I thought I should never be able to take a full breath again. The least excitement would bring on the most distressing palpitation. I had scarcely taken a half-bottle of the Heart Remedy before I could see a marked change in my condition. I began to sleep well, had a good appetite, and improved so rapidly that when I had taken six bottles I was completely cured."

(16.) What did Omri and what do all like him get, who have bartered their goodness for position and power? (17.) Verses 23-24—Which king is more likely to be a good man, one who comes to the throne by heredity or by the vote of the people?

The Pure Food Law. Secretary Wilson says: "One of the objects of the law is to inform the consumer of the presence of certain harmful drugs in medicines." The law requires that the amount of chloroform, opium, morphine, and other habit forming drugs be stated on the label of each bottle. The manufacturers of Meritol Cough Remedy have always claimed that their remedy did not contain any of these drugs, and the truth of this claim is now fully proven, as no mention of them is made on the label. This remedy is not only one of the safest but one of the best in use for coughs and colds. Its value has been proven beyond question during the many years it has been in general use. For sale by Reliable Drug Co., druggists, members American Drug & Press Association.
